WHY AUGUSTA NEEDS A FEDERAL BUILDING.

[From the Kennebec Journal.]

It is well known to our people that Senator Hale on the last day of January presented a bill to provide for the erection of a public building in this city, which was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and on the 6th of February, the committee unanimously presented the following:

Bill to provide for the erection of a public building in the city of Augusta, Maine.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to purchase or otherwise provide a suitable site, and cause to be erected thereon, at the city of Augusta, in the State of Maine, a substantial and commodious public building, with fire-proof vaults, for the use and accommodation of the post office, United States courts, internal-revenue office, and for other government uses. The site, and the building thereon, when completed according to plans and specifications to be previously made and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall not exceed the cost of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; and the site purchased shall leave the building unexposed to danger from fire in adjacent buildings by an open space of at least fifty feet, including streets and alleys; and for the purposes herein mentioned the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury: Provided, That no part of said sum shall be expended until a valid title to the said site shall be vested in the United States, and the State of Maine shall cede to the United States exclusive jurisdiction over the same, during the time the United States shall be or remain the owners thereof for all purposes except the administration of the criminal laws of said State and the service of any civil process therein.

Mr. Manley has recently returned from Washington, and he informs us that in an interview with Senators Hale and Frye, he learned that both those gentlemen would warmly support the measure and believed it would soon pass the Senate. If it does, and goes to the house our Representative in Congress, Mr. Lindsey, will take charge of the bill, and will unquestionably be seconded in his efforts by our entire delegation. At the request of Senator Frye, Mr. Manley addressed him yesterday the following letter, which states concisely and strongly the reasons why Augusta should have a public building:

OFFICE OF POSTMASTER, AUGUSTA, MAINE, Feb 21.

Hon. WM P. FRYE, U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Sir: I desire to call your attention to Senate Bill 1061, providing for the erection of a public building in this city. In every large city in the United States the Government has erected a public building for post-office purposes. It has not only been done because it was necessary to accommodate the large population of a city, for since the establishment of the free delivery system, no crowd is found congregated even at the N. Y. post-office. I take it these buildings have been erected in order to accommodate and facilitate the transmission of the great amount of mail matter that congregates in, and is dispatched from, the post-office in every large city in this country. The city of Augusta, while ranking in population hardly above a country village, presents in its post-office business an anomaly that is indeed amazing, and it is impossible to lease in this city a building in which the entire business of the post-office can be carried on. The result is, occupancy of two separate buildings entirely distinct, more than 200 feet apart, so that it may properly dispatch the vast mail it has to handle. If you will refer to page 355 of the Postmaster-General's report for 1881, you will find there that in a comparative statement showing the weight of second class matter mailed, and the amount of postage collected thereon, at 15 of the principal post offices in the United States which collected 71.75 per cent. or nearly three-fourths of the whole amount realized, Augusta stood fifth in rank. Let me give you the standing and the amount of postage collected thereon:

New York City,	$386.817 96
Chicago,	140 078 50
Boston,	83.261 50
Philadelphia,	70.184 04
Augusta, Me.,	65,027 76
St. Louis,	64,469 84
Cincinnati,	55 485 78
San Francisco,	23,940 58
Detroit,	21,380 46
Louisville,	18 680 84
Cleveland,	17.562 38
Milwaukee,	15 969 22
Pittsburgh,	14.310 38
Toledo,	14.081 26
Baltimore,	12,281 82

What is still more remarkable, is that the percentage of increase for the year 1881, over the year 1880, Augusta outranked them all, making an increase of 46 6-10 per cent. The nearest that any other city approached to this increase was Chicago, and its increase was 21 2-10 per cent, while the increase of New York city was only 11 6 per cent. During the coming year our increase will continue, nor is this all: a vast amount of mail matter is sent from this office which is not shown in the post office department records, for the reason that it is properly stamped but by stamps not purchased here. During the months of Oct. Nov. Dec. 1881, and Jan. 1882, 79,111 pounds of third class matter and 2,207,525 circulars were sent from this office, all properly stamped by stamps not purchased at this office, the postage on same amounting in value to $28,414 13. It may well be asked, why this vast business? It is, of course owing to the immense business done by the several large publishing houses established in this city. We have five, E. C. Allen & Co., True & Co., P. O. Vickery & Co., Hill & Co., and Shaw & Co. These several companies own large and permanently constructed establishments, fitted up with every modern improvement in machinery in which they publish papers, magazines and books, and do lithographic work of all kinds, print chromos of every description, and publish steel engravings worth at wholesale $12 apiece.

In addition to a room being needed for our great and largely increasing postal business, the Pension Agency of the entire State is located in this city, which requires rooms with fire-proof vaults. An Internal Revenue Office is here located. The business interests of this section of the State demand that one term at least a year of the United States District Court be held here. This is the capital of the State, and the business center of at least one-sixth of the entire State. As you are well aware, here are situated the Kennebec United States Arsenal, one of the most important posts of the United States, the Capitol Buildings of the State, the State Insane Hospital, the county buildings, and practically the United States Military Home for disabled soldiers, containing now 1,200 inmates. This Home is located at Togus, four miles distant, but reached by way of Augusta, all its freight and mail matter leaving the train here.

The Government is now paying $3,200 per annum for rentals in this city, with very limited accommodations.

All our citizens, irrespective of party affiliations, and in fact the citizens of a large section of our State, are deeply interested in the fate of this bill, which will unquestionably be earnestly advocated by Maine's entire Congressional Delegation. I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully, your ob't servant,

J. H. MANLEY.

The entertainment by the Houlton Dramatic Club at Frisbie's Hall, last Wednesday evening, drew a crowded house. The play was the domestic drama, entitled "Temptation, or the Irish Emigrant," presented, with new and attractive scenery painted by Mr. Anderson.

A short time since the dwelling house and out buildings of Mr. Sewell Winslow at Mars Hill were burned, including furniture, clothing, twenty hives of bees and in fact about everything he had. Mr. Winslow was a former resident of Gardiner, and at the time was visiting a brother in that city. He went to Aroostook County about twenty years ago and by his industry, energy and economy, had made for himself and family a comfortable and pleasant home. The Reporter says: Several of his friends in Gardiner contributed something to help him build another house.

As the 8:10 accommodation train from Gardiner was about opposite the State grounds, Thursday morning, a large dog attempted to push the train from the track by bracing himself against the bank of snow left by the snow-plow. His attempt resulted in cracking the step of the rear car and starting an iron brace; but disastrously for the dog.

Augusta patriarchs are enthusiastic in their accounts of their reception and entertainment by Sagadahoc Encampment of Bath. About 35 members, in the showy insignia of the order, left this city on the afternoon train Wednesday, arriving in Bath at about five o'clock. Proceeding at once to the Sagadahoc House, they passed the time until eight o'clock in social converse. Then the doors of the dining hall were thrown open, and the patriarchs and their ladies filed in to a sumptuous banquet, to which they did ample justice. After the repast the room was cleared, and the dancing commenced, which was kept up until an early hour. The encampment arrived in Augusta Thursday on Jewett's train, unanimously reporting a magnificent time.—Kennebec Journal.

John Sawtelle, of Sidney, one of the oldest citizens, celebrated his 90th birthday on Tuesday, Feb. 21. He enjoys good health, and takes as much interest in the affairs of the country as he did 50 years ago. He has been a subscriber to the Journal since it was published by Luther Severance. His sight has failed of late and he has been obliged to give up reading; but the papers are read to him daily and his interest is unflagging. There is only one person in town older than Mr. Sawtelle, and they both bid fair to reach 100.

The schooner built by Coombs & Day, of Camden, was launched last week. She is 148 feet long, 35 feet and 2 inches beam, and 12 feet deep; tonnage 407,02, register and 564 carpenter's measure. Her name is Viola Reppard, after a Savannah young lady, the daughter of a hard pine dealer, who owns one quarter of the vessel. The figure head is a life size figure of the lady for whom the vessel is named. The schooner is to be commanded by Capt. Jesse Ogier, of St. George, and is chartered to load hay here for Savannah.——It is understood that the lobster factory will start up about the middle of April.

Mr. Allen Goodwin, who formerly lived at North Fairfield, but for the last two years he lived at Skowhegan, is having quite a serious time with one of his limbs. About six months ago, the dry rot appeared on the great toe upon one foot where he had pared off a corn. It has gradually grown worse and extended up into the leg. It has been very painful and for some days, Mr. Goodwin has urged the amputation of the lower part of the limb. Last Wednesday, the Doctor amputated the leg about four inches below the knee. It is very doubtful if this arrests the disease.

John Weston, collector of Skowhegan, settled last Saturday with the selectmen. The bills were given to him last June and amounted to $21,000 39. About $200 in abatements, on account of mistakes, etc., were made. With this exception, he has settled the entire account.

The item in last week's Age in regard to a legacy to the Durham brothers was a mistake, Jonas D. The schooner Edward L. Warren, recently launched at Searsport is a fine craft. Her dimensions are: length 93 feet over all; beam 27 feet; depth of hold, 7½ feet. Her government tonnage is 130,95; carpenters' 173. Her cost was about $11,000. She recently loaded hay here at A. M. Carter's for Boston, taking 100 tons, and is capable of carrying five or six tons more.

Potash for grape vines is being tested in France. A variety of the black muscat has been found defective in color where potash is defective in the soil, and a writer recommends that one vine of this grape be placed in every grape-house to show by its full or by its deficient color whether or not the border for the roots has a sufficient supply of potash.

TEACHING CHILDREN TO WRITE.

Neat and legible letters, of course, the little ones should to taught to write; because legibility—the distinct forming of every word—is a better quality than any uniformity or prettiness of writing, and because an ugly, careless letter is almost a slight to the person who is to read it. But before all else, it should be impressed upon young letter writers that they are to write down exactly what they would like to say; that the letter that reads like talk is the best letter; and the formal one that never would have been spoken is the worst. When the children learn to speak faultlessly, and pick up in time the conversational habit of orderly sequence of ideas, their letters will naturally become perfect in wording and arrangement, but will still be a faithful transmission of the viva voce speech of the writers.

If this common-sense principle of teaching letter-writing were introduced, there would be a new and immense pleasure added to the life of all child-loving old folk; at some time or other the children would find need of sending letters; and the prattle of the little ones, their fresh talk breathing happy ignorance of all but their little world, where small cares, joys, and interests stand around them magnified—the very sound of their voices echoing out of the words they might have said—all this could be kept indelible and even fresh; and in how many cases of distance, time, or sorrow, the old letters would become precious as gold?

It would also remove from children's minds much of the difficulty of learning to write letters. If the boys and girls are still too young to go to Dr. Smithers's or Miss Straightlace's, a letter even to their loving and beloved Uncle John is a labor approached with dread. They are shown where to begin, and after choosing a commonplace beginning about the pleasure of writing (!), or the safe receipt of the last letter, they beg to be "set going just down the first page," or to be told something to say. The beginning was easy; and it was as fixed as a chess-opening; but facing three and a half blank pages, the brain-ransacking of the children is pitiful—and the pen-chewing, and the jealousy of the one that has first found something to say; and is going ahead. At least, they all go "ahead," and get their sheets turned inside-out for page two; during which process six-year-old Baby, who has been printing in pencil, questioned by Jack, reports about her sneezing cold, the picnic to-morrow, the pigeons, Tabby's kittens, the settlement of the monkey's name as Pongo, and Mab learning music.

And Jack bursts out in a fury that he has written every bit the same thing, only beginning with the picnic, and ending with the kittens and the cold; while Mab, with equal resentment toward both, as if they were marauders in possession of her exclusive property, complains: "That's the very thing I've got—my music, and the picnic and Pongo, and all the rest of it down to Baby's cold! Uncle can't read the same thing over three times, you stupid Jack! Baby, begin again with something else to say." Then, probably, some peacemaker interposes, issues new writing paper, and divides the universal topics into three separate lists: Baby is to keep her own "sneezy cold and the kittens," and Mab her own music and the pigeons and the picnic; Jack may have the picnic too, and Pongo; but they are all to say a great deal more about the items of news. After this there is peace, until they become stranded again, and don't know what to put next.

The whole letter, which Uncle John will receive as a spontaneous greeting, written "with great pleasure," is in reality a dreary, prolonged effort; and yet, if Uncle John were there, Mab, Jack, and Baby would hug him to pieces with genuine welcome, and make his head ache with three lively versions of information, all given irrepressibly and at once. Do let the peace-maker that hit on the plan of dividing the news fairly explain to the children that they are to send their hugging welcome in words freely to weary, work-tired Uncle John, and that they are then just to think what they would say if they were talking, and say it in that minute in the first words that come. This, and this alone, is teaching children how to write the letters that are worth getting.

PRETTY SMALL BUSINESS

A New York despatch states that "the United States Grand Jury now in session are considering the charges made against Nehemiah M Curtis, a special agent of the Treasury Department, for violation of the statute in regard to collecting assessments from Custom House officials for political purposes, which moneys were used in the last Presidential campaign." Some weeks ago the telegrams announced that the New York Civil Service Reform Committee had preferred these charges against Gen Curtis, that upon the accession of Secretary Folger, he had put the case in the hands of U S District Attorney Woodford for prosecution, and that he had also declared that the Department would almost immediately cease to employ Gen Curtis Perhaps our readers would like to know who this General Curtis is, and the nature of the crime for which he is to be dismissed from service and pursued before a Grand Jury by the officers of our Republican Administration

General Curtis is the Treasurer of the New York Republican State Committee, of which Vice President Arthur was Chairman up to the date of its reorganization in 1881 The crime of which he is accused is that in requesting voluntary contributions —not "levying assessments"—for political purposes he asked and received donations, as was his duty, from all classes of citizens including those who were holding Government offices and drawing salaries as a practical result of the success of the Republican party at the last Presidential election Everybody knows that if Gen Hancock had been chosen President, Gen Curtis would not have found many Republican officials in the New York Custom House to solicit for contributions Everybody with common sense knows that all parties habitually ask official beneficiaries to aid in providing campaign funds, and no one has ever offered any intelligent reason why office-holders should be the only persons prohibited from contributing towards the necessary expenses of the party to whose success they are indebted for their positions But we are not now proposing to criticize the Civil Service Reformers for their action in this case so much as to consider the curious course of the officers of an Administration which has never been credited with special sympathy for the type of Reform that is principally anxious to prevent the Republican party from obtaining the voluntary aid necessary to carry on its campaigns.

The despatch is an error, we think on one point as the money was raised for the State election of 1881 and not that of 1880 Now Gen Arthur had for years been Chairman of the State Committee, and under his direction year after year precisely the same contributions had been asked and collected Secretary Folger had always supported and approved Chairman Arthur, and one naturally asks why such zeal in persecuting Gen Curtis for doing just what had always been done, and what will be done again this year in New York and every other State in the Union It seems that a few years ago a law was put through Congress making it unlawful for any officer of the Government to levy or collect political contributions from persons in Government employ General Curtis did not regard himself as such an officer of the Government as he has simply been employed in some special service connected with revenue cases But if the technical infraction of the law were clear the lack of any criminal or wrongful intent or of any injury to anybody is so obvious that we should not expect President Arthur's Secretary of the Treasury to show an excess of eagerness in the prosecution of Gen Curtis, but also great haste in depriving him of his employment surely the mere nominal act of receiving and disbursing the funds of the New York State Committee just as it had been done the very year before under Gen Arthur's Chairmanship could not be regarded by the President and his advisers so heinous a crime as to require the extraordinarily fierce prosecution of the State Committee's Treasurer and especially one of the veterans who fought all summer on that line with Grant!

Shall we whisper to our readers a possible reason for this readiness to throw Gen Curtis as a sop to the Reform Cerberus Something happened in New York politics last Summer There was a machine that got smashed and the new Republican State Committee of which Gen Curtis is Treasurer, is not controlled by the old crowd but by "those other fellows More and worse —Gen Curtis, himself soldier and hero though he be, is not a member of the glorious 306" and does not wear one of the talismanic brass medals. General Curtis had committed the unpardonable sin of opposing a third nomination of Grant at Chicago!

In the great War of the Rebellion there were many heroes, and so much hard fighting that any distinctions are likely to be invidious We think, however, that those who saw the most sanguinary service will readily admit that probably the most desperate, continuous, hand-to-hand struggle of the war was at the storming and capture of Fort Fisher, where for six hours our soldiers fought their way from traverse to traverse in a literal death grapple with their entrenched enemy, until they had carried and captured by assault the most formidable fortification in the Confederacy, with 169 heavy guns and over two thousand prisoners and small arms. In that terrific contest we lost 1, 0 killed and 536 wounded, Colonel Bell mortally, and Col Pennypacker severely, and among those smitten down almost fatally by the iron and leaden hail from the Confederate parapets was the heroic Brigadier General Nehemiah M. Curtis, who led his brigade in person to the storming of the fort. A Hercules in stature and a lion-heart in courage, those who saw his towering form—nearly six feet and a half in height, cheering on the assault, amid the smoke and fire of that death-carnival, have assured us that the picture will never fade from their minds. He fell almost mortally wounded, but not until he had inspired his men with the desperate determination that nothing could deprive them of victory. Since the war we have met him on various occasions and the history of his loyal service is written in his terrible scars. One eye has been shot out entirely, and he has been almost riddled with the wounds received under the Flag of his Country.

That is the man who is handed over to a Grand Jury for the offence of acting as Treasurer of the New York Republican State Committee and receiving and disbursing just as his predecessors have done before him, the funds voluntarily contributed for the legitimate expenditures of a political campaign. And just as Congress is being importuned to add a yearly income of over $10,000 to the wealth of Gen. Grant, the Secretary of the Treasury takes pains, and apparently takes pride in announcing that he has not only instructed the District Attorney to prosecute vigorously, but also proposes to deprive the bullet-shattered Hero of Fort Fisher of the privilege of working for the Government

Looking this matter all over and having a memory that goes back to days when the country was more anxious for the Nation's life than about political contributions, the whole of this prosecution and persecution of Gen. Curtis appears to us exceedingly and miserably small business.

DEMOCRATIC TRICKS WITH THE SUFFRAGE

[From the Boston Journal]

The South Carolina Legislature, at its recent session, devoted itself with an ardor worthy of a better cause to devising measures which would ensure the keeping of the Government in the hands of the Democratic minority and would effect the practical disfranchisement of a large portion of the negroes under the cover of law. One of the features of the new election law is a provision prescribing the use of eight ballot-boxes for the different officers, the object being to confuse ignorant voters by the multiplication of ballots and boxes, and so to make it easy for them to put their ballots into the wrong boxes. Even an intelligent voter is liable to make mistakes, unless he is extremely careful, if he has to vote at the same time in a number of different boxes, and the effect of such a multiplication of boxes upon ignorant voters must of course be much more confusing At first there was a provision that these boxes were to be kept in a closed room into which the voters were to enter singly and deposit their tickets without being spoken to. This was designed to prevent a confused and ignorant voter from getting any information as to where his ballots belonged, but even the South Carolinian sense of fairness, or whatever takes the place of it, revolted at this, and the provision was stricken out—the eight ballot-boxes, however, being retained. But the law contains a provision even more iniquitous, viz, that "the Supervisor of Registration shall close the list and in case it be made to appear to his satisfaction that there is a qualified voter in the precinct who has failed to register he may, upon such evidence as he may think necessary at his discretion permit the name of such voter to be placed on said list and issue a certificate therefor" This provision makes registration discretionary with the Supervisor, and enables him to put as many fraudulent voters upon the list as he may desire One of the objects of the law is to escape Federal supervision at State elections and to keep the registration in the hands of Bourbon State Supervisors. It seems to be open to doubt, however, whether the new statute does not come into collision with the Federal Election law in such a manner as to defeat this purpose Section 2016, Revised Statutes, says of the Federal Supervisors of Election,

"The Supervisors appointed are authorized and required to attend at all times and at all places fixed for the registration of voters who, being registered, would be entitled to vote for Representatives or Delegates in Congress, and to challenge any person offering to register, and to attend at all times and places when the names of registered voters may be marked for challenge and to cause such names registered as they may deem proper to be so marked, to make the lists, or either of them, provided for in section 2026 and verify the same, and upon any occasion, and at any time when in attendance upon the duty herein prescribed, to personally inspect and scrutinize such registry, and, for the purposes of identification, to affix their signatures to each page of the original list, and of each copy of any such lists of registered voters at such times and upon each day when any name may be received, entered or registered, and in such manner as will in their judgment detect and expose the improper or wrongful removal therefrom or addition thereto of any name"

Section 5512, Revised Statutes, provides for criminal prosecutions in cases where State Supervisors violate the Federal Law, as follows

"If any such officer knowingly and wilfully registers as a voter any person not entitled to be registered, or refuses so to register any person entitled to register, or if any such officer or other person who has any duty to perform in relation to such registration or election, in ascertaining, announcing or declaring the result thereof or in giving or making any certificate, document or evidence in relation thereto knowingly neglecting or refusing to perform any duty required by law or doing any act unauthorized relating to or affecting such registration or election, * * * such person shall be punishable by not more than $500 fine and not more than three years' imprisonment and the costs of the prosecution"

Section 5516 increases these penalties, if it is shown that the offense was committed against a person of color, and Section 5515 explicitly declares that the law applies to every registration made for any State election at which Representatives to Congress may be chosen, notwithstanding such registration is also made for the purpose of any State or municipal election The discovery of these provisions of the Federal law has considerably disturbed the serenity of the South Carolina Bourbons.

In Kentucky, the rather remarkable fact is stated by the Louisville correspondent of the New York Times, that the committee of the Democratic Legislature for reapportioning the legislative districts has ignored the colored population altogether, under cover of an unrepealed section of the State Constitution which defines a voter as "a free white male citizen of 21 years." The result of this, of course, is to rob the colored people altogether of representation, and to diminish the Republican strength. Thus Christian county, which has 3736 white and 2807 colored voters, a total of 6543, is allowed but one Representative, while Warren county, with 4417 white and 1541 colored voters, a total of only 5958, is allowed two Representatives. The same ratio holds in other counties, and the apportionment is in distinct defiance to the Constitution of the United States.

Colonel Corkhill, the United States District Attorney, at Washington, has been requested by the Western Union Telegraph Company to investigate the publication of the despatch from Mr. Reid, of the New York Tribune, to General Garfield. Col John Hay asserts that the despatch was sent by Mr. Reid to him, and that he read it to General Garfield, but never permitted the copy to leave his hands. It is supposed that it must have been stolen from the wires.

The Boston Traveller's Washington special says that Senator Hoar, in executive session, charged that Mr. Conkling was indirectly responsible for the death of President Garfield, and that his nomination on the eve of the memorial services was an outrage on the memory of President Garfield, and an insult to the Senate.

THE CONKLING COUP.

Opinions and Speculations at Washington.

A SURPRISE TO THE SENATE

[Wash Cor N Y. Tribune]

WASHINGTON, Feb 24 When the President sent to the Senate to day the name of Roscoe Conkling of New York, for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court in place of Ward Hunt, resigned, it was generally felt that he exhausted the possibilities of political surprises. The unexpectedness of the President's decisions is passing into a proverb. They are apt to come at a time when they are not looked for, and they are apt not to be what they are expected to be It is not known how old the President's determination to name Mr. Conkling for this place is but some of his most intimate friends—men who would know his plans, if he were in the habit of allowing any person to know them—were not aware of it until this morning. The secret was so well kept that the first intimation that any Senator probably had of it, was the receipt of the nomination What made it more of a surprise than it might have been was the fact that within the last two or three days the rumor-mongers had revived the old story that Senator Edmunds was to abandon his post of leadership in the Senate for one which has been several times put at his disposal and as often refused.

EXPRESSIONS OF INCREDULITY.

The expectation of the best informed of the President's friends that Judge Blatchford would receive the nomination, which has continued unbroken until to-day, has also heightened the surprise It was soon known through the Capitol and made the chief sensation of a dull session, though it cannot be said to have caused any thing like excitement Members and Senators discussed it with much interest, but quietly There were almost as many theories regarding the significance and intent of the nomination as there are members of Congress, and in the absence of real information among the President's friends, as among those who are not recognized as his friends, speculation ran its full course The chief topic of these discussions was the question whether or not the nomination was one made to be accepted, or was simply tendered as a compliment. A great deal of incredulity was manifested as to the genuineness of the nomination by those who recalled the fact that Mr Conkling declined at forty three the nomination for Chief Justice, which was offered him by President Grant, and who could not believe that at nearly fifty-three he would accept the position of Associate Justice—a much less conspicuous place, involving much drudgery and an enforced inactivity in political affairs, and carrying with it a salary of only $10 000 a year Mr Conkling it was said, had devoted himself to the practice of the law in order to better his personal fortune, which had been neglected during a long public career. It would be strange now if he should relinquish this effort to take a moderate salary with a place which might interfere with the fulfilment of the one political ambition of his life—to be returned to his seat in the Senate It was thought that it was a place which would not only be uncongenial to him, but one which he could gain nothing by taking.

WAS IT MADE IN GOOD FAITH

On the other hand, it was said that the President could not afford to put himself in the attitude of tendering a nomination for so dignified and honorable a position as that of Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States merely to serve as a political compliment. The President was so cautious in all his actions regarding appointments, it was said that he would not have made the tender of the place without some assurance that it would be accepted The nomination of Mr Conkling for an important office would be likely in itself to revive some of the bitterness of the controversy of last summer, and, if the people of this country should become convinced that it had been a mere stage play—a rehearsed performance for the sake of showing the country that the President retained his former high opinion of ex Senator Conkling—there would be a general resentment, which would have an injurious effect on the Administration of President Arthur. Many were inclined to think that for this reason, and because the President as a sagacious politician would see this, the nomination was probably made in good faith so far as the President was concerned

A VERDANTLY "PICTURESQUE" VIEW.

The view that was taken by some Republicans who have been opposed to the President within the party was an interesting one They said they were glad the appointment had been made, for the sake of the Republican party in the State of New York, because to use the words of one of them, "it takes a ghost out of the way" These gentlemen believed that the President had offered Mr. Conkling the place with the distinct intention of removing a disturbing cause from the politics of New York. They thought the President meant to say to Mr Conkling that he could have the indorsement conveyed by an appointment to a life office of much honor, but that he was not to be the leader of the party in New York, and his quarrels were not to be allowed to disturb its future In short, President Arthur proposed to lead the party in New York himself. Whether the place should be accepted or declined, the offer was to serve as a notice that Mr Conkling was to lead no longer. This is the view of some Garfield Republicans, who feel very kindly toward the Administration, and is perhaps as picturesque as any one of the hundred speculations that are current

IS IT A STEPPING STONE TOWARD THE SENATE AGAIN?

There are rumors afloat that Mr Conkling consented to take the place ten days ago, but they cannot be confirmed and do not find many be levers. It is positively known that ex-Senator Platt was strongly in favor of the appointment several days ago, and exceptionally well informed Republicans say that it is his scheme, though friends of the President deny that ex Senator Platt has any influence with him. At the time of the Albany contest the feeling between them was far from cordial. Two prominent New York politicians who are in Washington say they feel sure Mr. Conkling will not accept. Some shrewd observers incline to the belief that the nomination was made with a variety of motives, in the hope that Mr. Conkling would consent to serve, but without any assurance that he would do so. If he should decline the President can fall back on his original choice, which was apparently Judge Blatchford. One suggestion is that, as the next Senatorial election in New York does not come until 1885, Mr Conkling could take the place and have the prestige of serving for three years before engaging in a struggle for a re-election.

IMPORTANCE OF THE SPRING ELECTIONS.

[From the Lewiston Journal]

The next September election in Maine is to be one of great importance. A Governor is to be elected who will have the appointing of four Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court. A Legislature is to be selected which will serve for two years, and have a United States Senator for a long term to elect. Four Congressmen are to be chosen, probably on a general ticket. Beside this about double the usual number of County officers are to be elected No such importance has been attached to any Maine election that has been held within the past ten years It behooves Republicans to stand shoulder to shoulder in the spring elections and avoid all entanglements that may affect the success of sound principles at the polls The tactics of the opposition, as semi-officially announced, are on every possible plea to divide Republicans at the spring elections, and then shout "Democratic victory." We don't believe Republicans propose to gratify them

BLAINE'S VINDICATION COMPLETE

[From the Rochester (N Y) Democrat and Chronicle, Rep]

Mr. Blaine's vindication is complete In the entire correspondence between himself and Minister Hurlburt, no allusion whatever is made to the Peruvian Company except to condemn and denounce it To use the language of the Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune "Mr Blaine wrote that it had no foundation, and Mr. Hurlburt replies that it is nothing but a swindle" When Mr Hurlburt informed the State Department that Shipherd had offered to bribe him with $250 000 of the stock of the company Mr Blaine addressed a letter to Shipherd advising him that his name was struck from the list of attorneys allowed to practice before the State Department, and that his correspondence would be submitted to the President with the view of determining whether a criminal proceeding should be instituted against him by the Attorney General

None of our morning contemporaries in this State had any editorial comment upon the Conkling nomination The Lewiston Journal expresses no opinion of its own but denounced the N Y Tribune as "very violent and intemperate, and does Conkling more good than harm by its abuse" We have the impression that the Journal has frequently within the past year spoken quite as severely of Mr. Conkling as the Tribune does now but times and events fly so fast that our worthy Lewiston neighbor may have forgotten.

The Christian Register states that the Harvard Divinity School has invited an orthodox Congregational pastor to deliver a series of lectures before the students Rev Alexander Mackenzie of Cambridge, who will treat of "The Theology of the New Testament," from an orthodox standpoint, delivering one lecture every week. Mr Mackenzie was formerly pastor of the Congregational Church in Augusta

Mr Edward M Davis of Philadelphia, informed the recent gathering of Greenbackers in New York that he believed that "what the Government of the United States called money should be money, no matter whether it is gold, silver, paper, or old shoes" Mr Davis added that Horace Greeley once called him a lunatic, which is a creditable reminiscence of the Tribune Philosopher.

The N Y Times and N Y Herald have both asserted repeatedly that Mr Secretary Fish having once authorized the good offices of the American Ministers at Lima in aid of the Landreau claim afterward withdrew the authorization and repudiated the claim The publication of the official documents recently sent to Congress shows that these journals are under a mistake Mr Fish, at three different times to three different Ministers, authorized the use of good offices in aid of the Landreau claim Those papers, however, fail to make any correction, but continue to maintain that it was very wrong for Secretary Blaine to do once what it was meet, right and the bounden duty of Secretary Fish to do three times

CANADA

The Dominion Finances.

OTTAWA Feb 25 Sir S L Tilley, Minister of Finance in bringing down the Budget said that at no period in the history of the country had the Government met Parliament with the finances in as good a position credit so high and people more prosperous, and he claimed that this state of affairs was greatly dependent on the protective policy of the Government. The revenue year by year has been increasing, until from having a deficiency of $200,000 in 1879, the treasury had a surplus of over $400,000 for the twelve months ending last July.

CONKLING'S NOMINATION.

MORE PRESS COMMENTS.

Gorham, the Traducer of Garfield, is Delighted

WASHINGTON, D C Feb 25 The National Republican says, to day, in reference to Senator Conkling's nomination The nomination of Mr Conkling to the Supreme Bench will call forth from friends and from all respectable foes only words of approval His spotless integrity, his unsurpassed natural gifts, his ... at learning, his capacity for work, his dignity of character and his national fame make his appointment one which the country will unanimously pronounce eminently fit to be made. There is not now there never has been an American of whom his countrymen are more justly proud than they are of Mr Conkling

The Opinion of Carl Schurz

NEW YORK Feb 25 The Post says The nomination of Mr Conkling for the Supreme Bench has apparently taken everybody by surprise and yet when one comes to reflect on it it seems the natural product both of President Arthur's own state of mind and of the policy he has thus far pursued in making appointments " The Post does not think Mr Conkling would make a good Judge, and says "In fact, it would be difficult to conceive of a person less fitted as regards temper for a Court containing many members, all of whom would probably consider him less well equipped than they for their common duties If President Arthur has offered him the place as some have suggested, to fulfil a personal or party obligation to a political chief, and with the expectation that he will decline it, he has put the Supreme Court to a use which cannot for one moment be defended or excused "

Not Well Received by the Press of the Country

The Commercial Advertiser says editorially The nominations made by President Arthur yesterday are not well received by the press of the country so far as heard from The Commercial when he entered on the duties of President, said if he would act on his own judgment and act promptly he would act wisely He has failed to do this and has erred He has failed to act promptly and courageously and has lost ground There is nothing the American people admire more than courage and firmness in their public men Under all the circumstances it was not the part of wisdom to nominate Mr Conkling for an office that he did not wish and which no true friend would wish him to accept It was ill judged to nominate Mr. Sargent for the ... mission when he had been from all accounts fixed upon for a member of the Cabinet It is an exhibition of weakness we did not expect from the President Now that his enemies see him faltering and frightened under them they will be encouraged to go on We regret the President's mistake We had hoped for better things

The Graphic Delighted

The Graphic says President Arthur, in nominating Mr Conkling to a seat on the Supreme Bench exercised his discretion. We think the appointment a wise one, ... eminently fit to be made and there would be ... such wild denunciation of the appointment as we now hear were it not that there is the determination on the part of ... to antagonize and wreck the Administration In this fight, thus forced ... Administration is most likely to be the victor but while the fight goes on the people will be the sufferers The President has done nothing wrong Those who are assailing him are like men who are determined to pick a quarrel on any pretext and who are spoiling for a fight "

Richard Smith's Opinion

CINCINNATI Feb 25 The Gazette says editorially Conkling's nomination will probably be regarded by the people as made out of personal considerations and not in view of Conkling's fitness though Arthur's motives may have been quite the contrary, also that the effect is to retire Mr. Conkling from active politics "

Mr Conkling Silent

NEW YORK Feb 25 Ex Senator Roscoe Conkling arrived at the Fifth Avenue Hotel at 11 25 to night He stated he had nothing to say regarding his intentions in connection with his nomination as a Justice of the Supreme Court His Utica friends say the nomination was a surprise to him and he appeared, so far as there was any appearance at all, to be averse to accepting

FROM WASHINGTON.

Nearly $33 000 000 to be Paid out in March.

In the Mason Court Martial

to day Lieut Howell testified that in an interview Mason told the reporter that he had determined to fire upon the assassin a week or two before the commission of the act Mason also said that he went to the jail with the intention of shooting Guiteau and that he had loaded that piece before going there The prisoner's counsel entered an objection to the admission of this testimony The court decided that both testimony and objection should be entered on the records Adjourned to Monday.

Twenty Indictments in the Straw Bond Cases

WASHINGTON Feb 25 Last evening the Grand Jury handed to District Attorney Corkhill twenty presentments in the post office straw bond cases as follows Two for perjury against John N Minnix and ... H Dickson, five for perjury against James W Donahue and Wm W Jackson, two for perjury against W S Barringer, one for perjury against E J Sweet one for conspiracy against Kate M Armstrong James W Donahue and W W Jackson, four for conspiracy against Samuel G Cabell James W Donahue, Chas Dick... and John N Minnix, four for conspiracy against Albert E Boone, Alvin C Burke, Wm S Barringer, E J Sweet and Samuel G Cabell, and one for conspiracy against James C Henderson and others

Committee Action Deferred.

WASHINGTON Feb. 25 Mr Conkling's nomination to the Supreme Bench was taken up in the Senate Judiciary Committee and discussed to some extent informally, but on account of the absence of several members the Committee deferred action upon it for their next meeting There appears to be no doubt of its being reported back to the Senate favorably.

COLORADO

The Acquittal of Stickney

NEW YORK, Feb 25 A Denver despatch says the sympathies of the community are strongly with Stickney and the announcement of acquittal was received with cheers by a great crowd in the court room The prisoner listened to the news quietly and received the congratulations of hundreds with great emotion He says he has made no plans for the future but his friends are ready to do anything in the world for him so great is the personal magnetism of the man. The witnesses from Harvard College and other points in the East are jubilant to-night and they will try to induce Stickney to go home with them

SEATS FOR SALESWOMEN We are glad to notice that under the influence of benevolent and public spirited ladies of New York city the authorities have been spurred up to measures for the enforcement of the humane law enacted last year compelling employers to furnish seats behind their counters for their saleswomen to rest upon when not engaged in duties requiring them to stand. The hardship of keeping saleswomen steadily on their feet through the whole weary period of a business day is as serious as it is cruel, and a long list of ills and disabilities can be traced to that cause. Since attention has been publicly called to it we find that the leading New York dry goods and other firms employing numbers of saleswomen hasten to declare that they recognize it as their duty and interest to provide such means of occasional rest for their employes, and many of them are providing handy little shelf-seats that fly up with a spring when not in use and thus take up no appreciable amount of room. In our own city we presume no law is necessary to prompt our enterprising and considerate storekeepers to provide seats for their saleswomen. Employers who have furnished such means of obtaining occasional rests are unanimous in attesting the superior service their employes are enabled to render, while customers at once notice the evidences of health and cheerfulness that result.

Clark also responded, and then the chair called upon Hon Joshua Nye, of Augusta, who spoke interestingly, and, of course, advocated a rigid enforcement of the liquor law in Bangor as in other cities and towns, Revs Messrs Adams and Axtell also spoke in favor of abolishing the many temptations spread over our city ex President Montgomery appealed for recruits to the total abstinence banner, and the meeting adjourned, all feeling as though encouragements were being vouchsafed.

THE EAST HAMPDEN MURDER.

VERDICT OF THE CORONER'S JURY.

The Examination of Mrs. Glynn.

Fully Committed for Trial

Verdict of the Coroner's Jury

As announced Saturday the coroner's inquest on the body of the infant found in the cellar of Mrs Mary Glynn's house in East Hampden, was adjourned to Saturday forenoon, at the City Marshal's office At the hour named, the jury which was sworn in by Coroner Whitney, Friday, assembled, It was composed as follows Reuben Murch, foreman, John Cary, Alexander Yeans, Gardner Hunting M. W Smart Hiram Brackett The deliberations were very brief, the witnesses having been examined Friday, and in about fifteen minutes the jury returned a verdict that the child came to its death by strangulation with a scarf, or some such implement, in the hands of Mary Glynn, of East Hampden

THE EXAMINATION

Saturday morning the examination of Mary Glynn, for the murder of Patrick Glynn, took place before the Police Court Owing to the interest in the case, the Police Court room was unable to accommodate the large crowd which desired to witness the proceedings, and the examination was consequently held in City Hall, the Court occupying the platform while the galleries were thrown open to the public Before the doors were opened a large crowd had assembled on the sidewalk which soon completely filled the galleries The respondent, a stolid and brutal looking woman of some forty-five or fifty years of age sat on the platform in charge of officer Weymouth. The witnesses, principal among whom was the murderer's daughter, and mother of the murdered child, soon after came in and took seats near the respondent, who at once began to betray a nervousness and uneasiness of manner County Attorney Mace appeared for the State, and A J Merrill, Esq, for the defence. Judge Brett read the complaint against the prisoner for wilfully and feloniously killing and murdering Patrick Glynn, to which the respondent, in a weak voice, pleaded "Not Guilty " The first witness called by the State was Mary Glynn, daughter of the accused She testified substantially as follows Am the daughter of Mary Glynn, and the mother of the missing child, Patrick Glynn, who was eleven months old My age will be sixteen in March On the night when the child became missing she had retired to bed with the child on her arm and both had been asleep when, at about half past ten, her mother came in to the room and took the child from the bed, saying nothing. (A this point, the old woman, who had been uneasy ever since her daughter took the stand, and who had only been restrained by main force of the officer from talking in her ear, began to shake her head and mutter, and finally broke out in a sobbing voice 'she can't prove it.") She made no objection to her mother's taking the child as she understood she was going to carry it to the Orphans' Home—they had talked before this about doing so. Described the manner of her mother leaving the room, and added that she had never since seen the child alive. After her mother had left the room heard a stifled cry—one only—from the child, apparently proceeding from the cellar. Her mother afterwards returned and went to bed. Said she had carried the child to the Orphans' Home, and left it there all right in a cradle. Said she got a ride with a man and woman as far as the Bangor House. According to her belief her mother was gone about fifteen minutes. When she next saw the child it was after its body had been found by the officers. She identified the body as that of her child.

The cross-examination of the witness was brief and unimportant. The evidence of the witness bore every mark of truthfulness, and was given as unhesitatingly as could have been expected, considering first, the relationship of herself to the accused, and next the fact that she is apparently of a very low order of intellect and very ignorant.

The next witness called was Marshal Reed, who testified that complaint was made to him last Monday that the child was missing, when he went down with Officer Weymouth to make inquiries. Mrs. Glynn told him that Mrs. Bragg from this city went down there and took the child. He went to see Mrs. Bragg who told him she knew nothing of it, and went down with him to Mrs. Glynn's house where she repeated the denial, and said she had not even seen Mrs Glynn for fifteen or eighteen years. Mrs Glynn then spoke up and said, "You sent a woman after it, didn't you?" to which Mrs Bragg replied, "no I did not" Mrs Glynn then went on to describe the appearance of the woman who, she alleged, came after the child, and said the woman brought clothes for the child and dressed it up there, leaving its old ones. This talk was made in the presence of the witness, Officer Weymouth and Mrs Bragg The respondent also said that she rode up as far as the Bangor House and then gave the child to the strange woman. He then arrested Mrs Glynn and put her in the Station House. Yesterday afternoon went with Officers Gordon and Weymouth to Mrs Glynn's house and between one and two o clock, found the child's body in a hole some twenty two inches deep and two feet square The hole was full of water and filth, and was covered over with boards and dirt The body was not frozen as it was protected from the cold by four to six inches of dirt frozen over it The body had on a dress skirt and stockings The body was in a good condition, but had a mark about the neck as if it had been strangled The body is now in the Station House Mrs Glynn admitted to witness this morning in presence of Officer Gordon that she put the child there Prisoner told witness Thursday night that some one had said the child's body had been found, and asked if it was so He declined to answer. She said, if he had he did not find it in the river He had examined the shore. He told her that he was going down to dig over the place and left He was called back by Officer Weymouth, who said the prisoner wanted to speak with him She said the child had been murdered but she did not do it, although she knew who did and knew where it was if witness hadn't got it If the body had not been found it would be found in an old well place in the cellar back of the stairs Witness then went down and found it as she had said He showed the child to its mother and she identified it

The defence waived further examination and Judge Brett ordered the respondent committed to jail to await her trial at the August term of the S J. Court

During the course of the examination the proceedings were continually interrupted by the demonstrations of the prisoner who seemed fully aware of her position and required the efforts of two officers to keep her quiet, crying and talking aloud by turns

La Mascotte

The sale of seats will open to-morrow morning for "The Mascot" next Thursday evening. The following is from the Halifax Recorder of the 20th inst

As for Fametta (Miss Duggan), she worked not only in the "comic business" but in her tambourine dance with untiring zeal, assiduity, and efficiency, the like of which we have never seen before on the Academy stage And when, having brought her peculiarly effective dance to a triumphant conclusion after a quadruple encore, she in a final pirouette came to grief, a la Cinderella, and lost her slipper among the audience, the whole house roared with laughter and applause

Mdlle Reighnard made a very comely and pleasing Bettina, and sang Andran's not sufficiently appreciated music with such sweetness and feeling as to obtain frequent and hearty applause. Miss Corev as Prince Frederick was as pleasing to the eye as ever. Handsome dresses and unimpeachably good stage presence made her performance of the part a great success. Of Fametta we have already spoken. Miss Duggan can certainly claim to have aroused our usually "quiet" play-goers into a greater display of wild hilarity than we are accustomed to.

The part of Pippo was entrusted to Mr. Henry Molten, and he rendered Miss Reighnard very good support, and for the wooing duet they were encored in a way which left no doubt of the satisfaction of the audience.

The stage business of Messrs. Rennie and Stanton, and the vivacity of Miss Duggan's acting and dancing is too utterly funny for anything.

As the 8:10 accommodation train from Gardiner was about opposite the State grounds, Thursday morning, a large dog attempted to push the train from the track by bracing himself against the bank of snow left by the snow-plow. His attempt resulted in cracking the step of the rear car and starting an iron brace; but disastrously for the dog.

AGRICULTURAL ITEMS.

A colossal pine which was lately uprooted by an inundation in Oulais, Finland, was found to have 1,320 annual rings.

No class of real property is appreciating in value so rapidly as forest lands or well wooded areas. They will be the rich legacies to future generations.

The coffee plant has the general appearance of a cherry tree. It grows to a height of twenty or thirty feet, but in the course of culture is kept cut down to five or six feet.

Roumania excels all other countries in Europe in the production of Indian corn. The average yield is thirty-four bushels per acre, the total crop aggregating about 105,000,000 bushels.

The village of Oakham, near Worcester, Mass., boasts of a tame partridge which has been the pet of the owner of the old mill for several seasons. The bird responds to calls and will fly out of the bushes and light on one's shoulder with the utmost readiness. He takes special delight in making new acquaintances, and is so well known to the sportsmen in the neighborhood that thus far he has escaped being shot.

The culture of Indian corn in New England has received a marked impetus, through the high price of the grain, the superior feeding value of Eastern over Western corn, and finally from the widespread experiments in the system of ensilage. No other crop deserves greater attention at the hands of our Eastern farmers than Indian corn, especially where its value in fodder becomes a factor in the estimate of profits.

Chickens should not be allowed to roost till from four to five months old, and then on broad perches, two to three feet only from the ground. Exhibition birds are better roosted on shelves, covered with sand and littered with straw, but then they must be kept very clean, and the straw must be frequently changed. On no account place perches one above the other, so that the droppings fall on birds lodged lower down. Cleanliness is the great key to success, and the roosting places should be scraped out daily and resanded. The greater the number of fowls the greater must be the care.

A celebrated Irish farmer gives this advice to one young in the business: "As a breeder you must be careful not to lose the calf flesh. If you do so by starving the animal at any time of his growth you lose the cream, the covering o' flesh so much prized by all retail butchers. Where do all the scraggy, bad-fleshed beasts come from that we see in our market, and what is the cause of their scragginess? It is because they have been stinted and starved of their growth. If the calf flesh is once lost it can never be regained. A great deal of fat may be got internally by high feeding, but the animal can never again be made one that will be prized by the retail butcher."

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS

The present Congress now sitting in Washington numbers among its members eight Irishmen, five Englishmen, four Scotchmen, and three Germans.

Lo! the poor Indian. The present chief of the Cherokees is described as a highly educated and polished gentleman, dressed in black broadcloth and spotless linen, with emerald studs.

The great Parliament House clock in London, the largest in the world, started running in 1859. It gives an error of but ninety seconds a year, the larger bells when it strikes are heard at a distance of ten miles, and the smaller ones four or five miles.

It is a good thing to have a newspaper. A Michigan man had one in his pocket the other day and after he had dodged a bear around a big tree until his knees trembled and his sight grew dim, he took it out, set it on fire with a match and thrust it into bruin's face when the animal fled in dismay.

A little Scotch terrier, about ten years of age, belonging to C. D. Dagget, of Boston, suddenly disappeared, and was finally found in the homœopathic hospital in West Concord street. It had presented itself at the dispensary with a broken leg, and barked at the door until admitted. Proper surgical attention was given it, the dog quietly submitting.

POSITIVELY CURED
BY
Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters.

Reasons Why they are Preferred to All Other Porous Plasters or External Remedies:

First.

Because they possess all the merit of the strengthening porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased rubefacient, stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.

Second.

Because they are a genuine pharmaceutical preparation and so recognized by the profession.

Third.

Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.

Fourth.

Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will not even relieve.

Fifth.

Because over 5000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use.

Sixth.

Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.

Woman's Triumph.

A Severe Surgical Operation. It is Endured Without Taking Ether. Subject, Mrs. Edward Myers, of Rondout, N. Y.

[From the Correspondence of the Kingston, N. Y. Freeman.]

The case of Mrs. Edward Myers, of Rondout, New York, furnishes an apt illustration of woman's power of endurance. This lady had been troubled for months in the usual way for Erysipelas of the hand, without benefit. Not until her hand had become a mass of putrefaction did she turn to Dr. Kennedy, proprietor of the "Favorite Remedy," for help.

He at once informed her that it was impossible to save the hand—that it must be amputated. She received this terrible intelligence quietly, declined to take ether, insisting merely to hold her husband's hand during the operation, and under went the painful process without moving a muscle or uttering a groan. Dr. Kennedy then gave "Favorite Remedy" freely to cleanse the blood and prevent the return of the disease, and Mrs. Myers now lives and rejoices in her great deliverance.

"Favorite Remedy" is fast becoming a household friend in all cases of Female Weakness and diseases of the blood. One dollar a bottle. Your druggist has it. d&wlm feb16
